MGCG Establishes Presence in Germany

New Stuttgart office will support growing demand for management consulting solutions focused on knowledge, project, operations and risk management.

HOPKINTON, MA (USA) & Stuttgart (DE) – February 06, 2004 – MGCG Inc., an international management consulting firm focusing on knowledge, project, risk and change management practices announced today the expansion of its global presence by establishing presence in Stuttgart, Germany. The initiative is part of MGCG's strategy in offering better service in Europe, by being closer to its prospect clients and enabling the delivery of service much closer to their needs and business requirements.

By establishing a local presence in Germany, MGCG will capitalize on the growing demand for management consulting solutions focused on knowledge, project, operations and risk management from key market segments including manufacturing, telecom, government and financial services. MGCG's activities in Germany will be led by Maurice Kennedy, a senior professional consultant with successful practice in the region and several years of technology and management experience.

"MGCG is gaining recognizable traction in the U.S., and by proactively responding to demand in Europe with local resources there, the company is advancing its position as the premier provider of world class management consulting, staff augmentation and training/coaching solutions in the areas of knowledge, project, operations and risk management," said Marcus Goncalves, President of MGCG. "The establishment of MGCG in Germany will broaden MGCG's market and allow us to attract European customers looking to reduce costs and improve operations quality through project management excellence and proactive risk assessment management."

"GCIST Enterprises welcomes the announcement of our strategic alliance with MGCG. The relationship will reinforce our constant strives to bring innovation, leadership and knowledge to an ever-changing environment that is technology driven," said Maurice Kennedy, CEO of GCIST Enterprises. "GCIST Enterprises and MGCG are combining efforts to bring its services in knowledge, project, operations and risk management and with this alliance and presence in Europe we are now opening the doors of effective knowledge and project management to the European market place bringing services to private, public and government agencies, our proud men and women in uniform and US professionals residing abroad."
